SATURDAY EVENING, MAR. 25, 1906,

Heroic Rescues. en in New York in many years, were made from the big six story tenement house 166 east One Hundred and Twenty-seventh street during a fire yesterday afternoon. Policeman Bowden, although badly burned, carried an un-then got iuside, made his way to the roof, crossed over to the adjoining house and brought the woman down to the street in safety. Hundreds of people witnessed the teat from the street and cheered the policeman's bravery. The fire started in the apartment of John Lehman, on the second floor. Mrs. Lehman was out and Lehman was minding their two children. He and the children had all fallen asleep, when a neighbor, passing their apartment, no-ticed one of the beds on fire. She roused him, and he grabbed the children and cure known to medical science took them to the street. Then he ran out to look for a policeman, and found Bowden. He brought him and two othe policemen back to the house, and while the two policemen went up to the third floor Bowden and Lehman went in the latter's apartment to try and put out the fire. Both were badly burned about the face and hands, and Lehman rushed out get medical assistance.

In the meantime the smoke had gone through the house, and the women and children of the 24 families living there were in a state of great excitement. Bow den heard cries for help and ran up to the third floor, where he found Mrs. Albert Johnson lying unconscious on the floor in the front spartment. He picked her up, threw her over his shoulder and started down stairs, but was driven back by the flames and smoke, Then he climbed out the window on the fire-escape. He could not go down, because flames from the second story window were sweeping across the fire escape, so he started up. It was a hard climb under any circumstance. der any circumstances, but especially hard for a man suffering from such painful burns. After Bowden reached the street he fainted. He was attended by a surgeon and sent home.

Then she tried Electric Bitters, shioh helped her at once, and finally made are entirely well. She is now strong and realthy." E. S. Pneumonia is too dangerous a disease for anyone to attempt to doctor himself, although he may have the proper remedies at hand. A physician should always be called. It should be borne in mind, however, that pneumonia always results from a gold or from an attack of the from a cold or from an attack of the grip, and by the proper treatment of these diseases a threatened attack of pneumonia may be warded off. There is no question whatever about this, as during the thirty years and more that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used, we have yet to learn of a single case of a cold or attack of the grip having resulted in pneumonia when this remedy was used. It is also used by physicians in the treatment of pneumonia with the best results. Dr. W. J. Smith, of Sanders, Ala., who is also a druggist, says of it: "I have been selling Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and prescribing it in my practice for the past six years. I use it in cases of pneumonia and have always gotten the best results."
